Estimated '81 state income tops billion

By EDGAR PEREZ
State revenues in fiscal year 1981 will exceed $1 billion for the first time in Mississippi's history, according to estimates by the Mississippi Commission of Budget and Accounting.

Hancock County's legislative delegates, Rep. J. P. Compretta of Bay St. Louis and Sen. Martin Smith of Poplarville, discussed the commission estimates at the December meeting of the Hancock County Chamber of Commerce's board of directors.

The commission's estimates of revenues and expenses for 1981 are contained in a report to members of the legislature dated Dec. 13.

"The general fund revenue estimate for fiscal year 1981 totals $1,012,940,200," the report states.

"Budget Commission recommendations (on expenditures) total $991,188,456 for fiscal year 1981 which will leave an estimated unencumbered cash balance at the close of business June 30, 1981 in the amount of $31,488,022," the commissioners explain.

Compretta told chamber members a comfortable surplus is a necessity to operate the state during the first month following close of the budgeted year.

In spite of the record revenues, however, the commission noted, "...anticipated revenues for the upcoming fiscal year would not be sufficient to meet the minimum needs of the state."

Movie closing brings federal court action

The City of Bay St. Louis, its mayor and four police officers are named as defendants in a $750,000 damage suit filed in U.S. District Court in Biloxi.

The operator of a Bay St. Louis theater, closed by city officials, has filed suit charging his constitutional rights were violated by the closing.

Levin Schulz, manager of the Star Theatre, is suing the City of Bay St. Louis, Mayor Larry J. Bennett, Chief of Police, Douglas Williams, Assistant Chief Frank Hess and Policeman Alton Benoit and Gordon Campbell.

The theatre was closed Dec. 7 during a showing of "Richard Pryor in Concert," recently broadcast on Home Box Office television.

Schulz claims Hess, Benoit and Campbell viewed the film for less than 15 minutes and closed the theater prior to any judicial proceedings.

Schulz said patrons were ordered to leave, and he was required to refund the admission price.

Schulz' attorney contacted Bennett Dec. 8 and was told Schulz could not reopen even to show another movie for an undetermined length of time in order to teach him a lesson, the court complaint said.

The suit states on Dec. 14 Bennett told Schulz he could reopen but would be shut down again if he showed a movie which did not meet with the approval of the mayor.

It said three police cars and one fire truck were outside the theater that night and one police car sat across the street all afternoon Saturday, Dec. 15.

Schulz contends that requiring the mayor's approval of films constitutes prior restraint and violates his constitutionally-guaranteed freedom of speech.

He claims to have suffered a loss of income and irreparable harm to his reputation as a result of the closing.

He is asking for $250,000 in actual damages as well as $500,000 in punitive damages plus attorneys' fees and court costs.

Schulz is represented by attorney Paul Minor of Biloxi and co-counsel Peter Barrett, Gulfport.

Waveland sewer plan nets firm $67,000

By WAYNE DUCOMB JR.

Waveland's Board of Aldermen Wednesday paid Lewis Eaton Partnership (engineers) of Jackson $51,000 on a total $67,000 charge for preliminary plans to run a sewer line under US-90 at Nicholson Avenue.

According to City Attorney Lucien Gex, the sewer line will serve incorporated areas of Waveland north of US-90.

Quered at the board's second December meeting at City Hall on whether the plan was part of a recent move to annex the Oaklands Restaurant area Gex replied, "This was merely coincidental."

Lewis Eaton of the engineering partnership, said, "We have a bill for $67,000 for five years of work."

"Already on this study there is about $30,000 in interest involved," Eaton added.

Eaton also reported on his negotiations with various federal funding agencies to secure funds for Waveland's sewer project.

"We will negotiate with the proper authorities to secure funds for the US-90 crossing," Eaton stated.

Longo said that any funds received from the Environmental Protection Agency (EPA) over $20,000 would be

Action Agency slates community needs meet

Gulf Coast Community Action Agency has slated a "community needs assessment conference" for 9:30 a.m. Thursday at Valena C. Jones Center in Bay St. Louis.

City and county government agency officials as well as officials of civic and senior citizen organizations are being urged to attend, according to Wilma H. Miller, the action agency's Bay St. Louis coordinator.

Objectives of the conference will be to develop a plan of community services to be provided by the agency during the next three years.

Areas of interest include housing, health, and nutrition, education, employment, transportation, economic development, energy, consumer action and others, Ms. Miller noted.

In addition to Ms. Miller, others conducting the conference will be Action Agency Director Boyle Moffett and Deputy Director Brenda W. Morant, both of Gulfport, and Mrs. Althea Parnas, project director for agency programs in Hancock County.

"We are seeking advice in addressing the scope of our community needs as well as ways in which the community needs can be met," Ms. Miller said of the conference.

Ms. Miller said further information may be obtained by calling 467-9281 or 467-3199.

Balsam, N.C., were married November 30 at sunset on pier deck at Gulfshore Baptist Assembly overlooking the Bay of St. Louis.

Rev. Nathan L. Barber, pastor of Bay St. Louis First Baptist Church officiated at the double ring ceremony. Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a mid-length white crepe back satin dress fashioned with long sleeves, gathered waist and rows of tucks down the front. She carried a white basket with pink and yellow miniature carnations, lavender daisies, blue statice and yellow chrysanthemums interspersed with fern and baby's breath and wore a wreath of matching flowers in her hair.

Mrs. Becky Rotundo, Bay St. Louis, attended her sister as matron of honor. She wore a mid-length beige knit dress with a white carnation corsage.

Dr. M. L. Dodson, Long Beach, served the groom as best man.

The mother of the bride wore a navy blue dress and the groom's mother wore a pale blue and white floral print dress. Both mothers wore white carnation corsages.

Following the ceremony a reception was held at the home of the bride's parents. Antique crocheted tablecloths made by the bride's grandmother, Mrs. Ida Cooke, overlaid the tables and fern and yellow and gold chrysanthemums encircled the wedding cake and punch bowl.

Assisting at the reception were Mrs. Charles Cooke, aunt of the bride of Covington, La., and Mrs. Sherry M. Ponder of Bay St. Louis.

For their wedding trip to Biloxi, the bride chose a brown velvet jumper worn with a beige cowl neck sweater.

The couple will reside in Bay St. Louis.

Out of town guests were Mr. and Mrs. Willard Beck, Balsam, N.C., Mr. and Mrs. Charles Cooke, Covington, La., and Dr. and Mrs. Dodson, Long Beach.

Bits 'n pieces

At this time of year many baskets of food or fruit are given to folks in need by organizations and groups.

Much help is given in the finding of people who are really in need by the Welfare Department.

Now we realize that this is not the primary job of this department but feel that they need to be recognized for their help just as well as those who give the baskets.

We say hats off to all of you who think of your fellowman at Christmas.

Those of you looking for some excitement after Christmas can do so by attending the opening games of the High School Basketball Holiday Classic Thursday, Dec. 27 at Bay Senior High's Tiger Dome.

The games will start rolling at 9 a.m. and will be a full day and night of first class basketball.

The Bay High Tigers are scheduled to battle Catholic High at noon. The Hancock North Central Hawks will vie with Clinton at 1:30 p.m.

This year's tournament, which will finish with the championship playoff between eight teams out of a total of 32 boys and 16 girl teams on Dec. 29 in the Coast Coliseum, is one of the largest basketball tournaments in high school play in the nation.

The Hancock North Central Hawkettes will play John Everett at 9 a.m. on Dec. 27 at d'Iberville.

We hope all of you will try to attend as many of the games as possible.

We are sure glad and excited to see our Hancock County Board of Supervisors have purchased new voting machines.

We used the horse and buggy paper ballots far too long. It will take many of us a little time to learn how to use the new voting procedure, but we feel it will really be easier to vote the new way rather than the old.

One thing for sure is that there probably won't be any spoiled ballots because of the wrong type of pencil used.

We are very happy for the many men and women of the area who are involved with the engine testing for the Space Shuttle Columbia.

We know there have been several problems in previous firings and are very proud of Monday's success. Of course more firings have to be completed before the test work at NSTL is completed.

I think this would be a good time for us to make a serious observation about the testing at NSTL.

The main job of the test facility is to search and search for problems in the shuttle engines, that is why it is called a test facility. Whenever there is a misfire, it doesn't necessarily mean that someone has goofed at NSTL.

The people at NSTL are there to pick the shuttle engine to pieces so to speak, to make sure everything works properly. We hope all of the NSTL people enjoy their holidays and congratulations on the successful firing.

There are some who probably disagree with the Bay Council's action to enforce the Zoning Ordinance about trailers and portable building in the city limits.

We feel the council was wise in stressing that the regulations should be enforced. If someone is in disagreement, they would make proper application for changes in the regulations.

It will be nice when about 25 days from now there will be no further trailers or portable building making US-90 an eye sore.

In the construction of the Wave Pool at Buccaneer State Park in Waveland, important roles were played by many local people.

These people, we are happy to say, many worked on our newspaper plant during our renovation last year.

Our architect friends Fred Wagner and his associate Jules Lagarde are architects for the pool. Bill Pittarin and associate John Bolin were involved in the structural design of the Wave Pool and did some consultation work on our building.

We have known Fred, Jules, Bill and Jim as personal friends for many years and are very happy with the expert job they did for us and the beautiful job accomplished at the Wave Pool.

Their work at the Wave Pool may not be recognized by many but it was very important.

Your work will bring many hours of pleasure to thousands of people for many years to come.

The construction of the pool involved many electricians, laborers, cement finishers, carpenters, and others. We say "Thank you" to all of you for your work.

We know many including ourselves, have been a little upset in receiving utility bills from Bay St. Louis saying we are in arrears.

In doing some searching, we have found that the city has been having some computer problems and is making every effort to clear them up.

Believe us, computers can be headaches when they get out of commission.

When you lose a week because of machines being down it takes a long time to catch up.

We have forwarded to Santa many letters from boys and girls of our area. Santa will be very busy on Christmas eve trying to fill all of the orders.

We hope everyone of you will receive the main thing you wanted for Christmas.

There were a large group of young men and women included in Who's Who in American High Schools from our community. It is a very high honor for these fine students and an honor for us to have them living here.

We wish them well in the coming years and hope they continue the good work.

Many years ago a very good friend or ours, a successful businessman in Bay St. Louis, mentioned to us something we hope you will always remember.

He said, "Those who are successful are the ones who do a little extra in their jobs, no matter what the job because we need people in all types of jobs."

As a student you find young men and women have been doing that little extra to be mentioned in 'Who's Who'.

When you complete high school and move on to college or a job if you continue with the same attitude, chances of you being successful are very good.

Congratulations on your honors.

In closing today we would like to mention a serious problem of the United States and the world.

In two days Christmas will be here, and some 50 American men and women are being held prisoner in Iran. Their chances of being home are very slim and really their lives are at stake.

We hope that when you attend Church today and Christmas services you will say a special prayer for our fellow Americans well being.

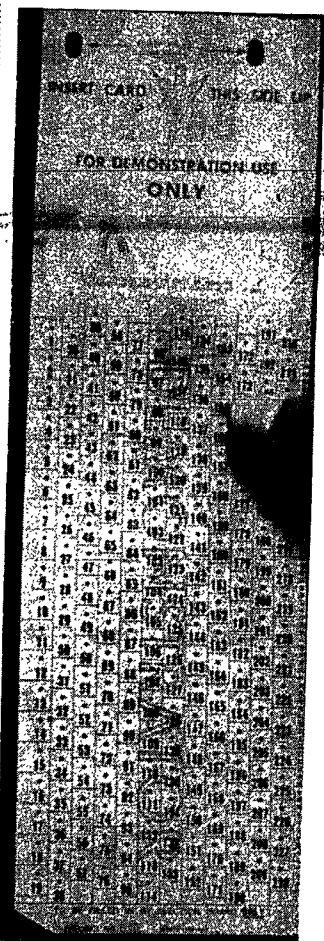

Merry Christmas to all.

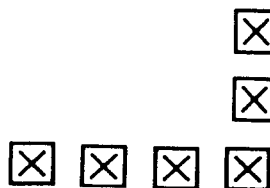

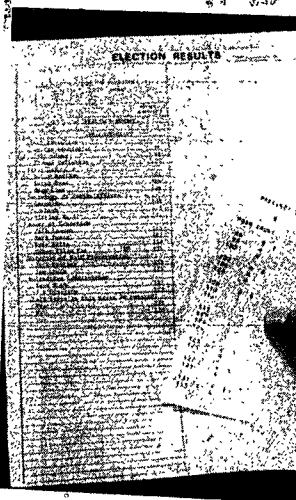

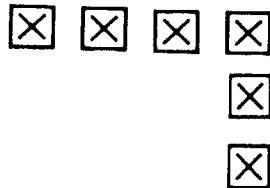

Peace on Earth

And when they were come into the house, they saw the young child with Mary, His mother, and fell down, and worshipped Him: and when they had opened their treasures, they presented unto Him gifts; gold, and frankincense, and myrrh.

MODERN VOTING—The Hancock County Board of Supervisors approved the purchase of a voting machine system for the county costing over $45,000. Replacing the written ballot, left, is a computer punch card and votes will be tabulated with precinct ballot counters and recorded on a print-out sheet, right, similar to an adding machine tape.

HANCOCK'S NEWEST BANK—Wayne Ducomb, Jr., center, president of the Hancock County Chamber of Commerce, cuts a ribbon of dollar bills to formally open Hancock Bank's new branch at Diamondhead Tuesday. Walter Hinkle, left, executive vice-president, branch administration, and Mrs. Lou Ladner branch employee, also participated in the ceremonies. Leo Seal Jr., bank president, welcomed everyone and thanked the people of Diamondhead for their support of the bank. Dick Moran is branch manager but was not able to attend the opening due to family illness. The facility is the first public bank to serve Hancock County north of I-10 since turn of the century.

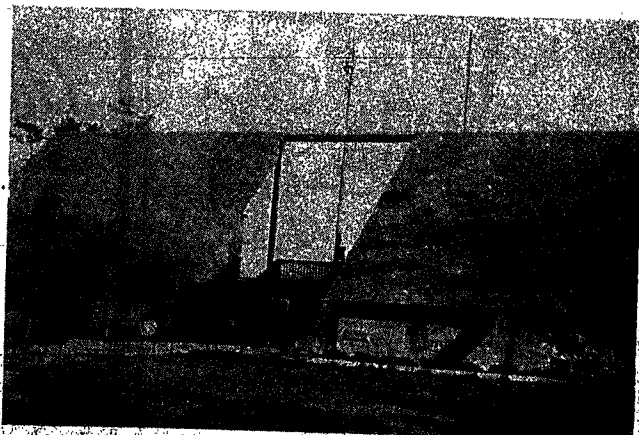

LOCKED IN—This vehicle with a Pearl River tag probably did not negotiate the curve on Highway 603 at Nicholson Avenue and Longfellow Road and ended up in the ditch sometime Monday night. A wrecker was probably the only way out. (Staff photo-Ellis Cuevas)

New State Income Tax changes effect filing

Several changes that will affect many taxpayers were made in the Income Tax Law that became effective in 1979, says Dr. Johnnie Sartor, agricultural economist, Mississippi Cooperative Extension Service.

Personal exemptions were increased to $1,000 per exemption in 1979. This is $1,000 per exemption applies to the taxpayer, the spouse and all dependents. The $1,000 exemption also applies to individuals who are 65 years of age and older and also to persons who are blind.

For example, if a taxpayer is 65 years of age or older, he will qualify for two exemptions amounting to $2,000. If the taxpayer is 65 years of age and also blind, he will qualify for three exemptions for a total of $3,000.

The double triple exemptions apply only to the taxpayer and spouse; other dependents qualify for only one exemption even though they may be 65 and blind, adds Dr. Sartor.

The zero bracket amount, formerly known as the standard deduction, increased from $2,000 to $2,300 for a single person and unmarried head of household; from $3,200 to $3,400 for married couples filing joint returns; and from $1,600 to $1,700 for married couples filing separately," he explains. "These increased zero bracket amounts will now make it possible for fore taxpayers to file the short form, Form 1040A."

Earned income credits increased to $500 for tax year 1979. Earned income credit is 10 percent of the first $5,000 of earned income which allows a maximum credit of $500. The maximum credit remains the same for earned income from $5,000 to $6,000. Once earned income reaches $6,000, the earned income credit is reduced by 12.5 percent as income increases. The tax credit will be reduced to zero once earned income reaches $10,000.

Persons who maintain a household for a dependent child and have an earned income less than $10,000 may qualify for this earned income credit. Even though a family may not have earned enough money to be required to pay income taxes, if it qualifies for earned income credits, it should file a tax return and receive a refund the same as it would for overpaying taxes.

"The tax changes for tax year 1979 now permit individuals to make more money before they are required by law to file a tax return," says Dr. Sartor. A sizeable increase in each category is based on the marital status and age of taxpayers.

Tax credits for political contributions increased 100 percent in 1979. The tax credit will be on-half of the contribution up to a maximum credit of $50 for single persons and $100 for joint returns. In 1978 the taxpayer had the option of claiming political contributions as a tax deduction or tax credit. In 1979 political contributions can be claimed only as a tax credit.

In 1979 taxpayers will pay income taxes on only 40 percent of capital gains. To qualify for capital gains, the property must have been held for at least 15 months at the time of sale.

When a person's automobile or truck is used for business, the standard mileage rate for income tax purposes is now 18.5 cents per mile for the first 15,000 miles and 10 cents per mile for all mileage over 15,000. Individuals can use this mileage or use actual expenses which include depreciation, gas, oil, tires and insurance.

Starting in 1979, taxpayers can no longer claim the state and local gasoline taxes as a deduction when tax returns are filed. The general tax credit is no longer available either, points out the economist.

"There are many other minor changes," he adds. "Use qualified professional help or study the available materials before attempting to file your return," he advises.

Publication No. 17, Your Federal Income Tax, 1980 Edition, is a good source of information and may be obtained from the Internal Revenue Service. Also, Publication No. 225, Farmer's Tax Guide, will be available soon free of charge from your county agent or the Internal Revenue Service.

Any person with questions on income taxes should call the local Internal Revenue Service office or the toll-free number in Atlanta, GA 1-800-241-3888.

Book Review
 BY JOE PILET
 A new novel, LaGrange Five, written by Mack Reynolds rolled from the Bantam Books press in October of 1979. It's science fiction at its best and was dedicated to Gerard K. O'Neill of Princeton.
 Professor O'Neill, author of many articles devoted to space colonization and exploration, richly deserves recognition. His work is drawn from in this book. LaGrange, a space colony on the moon's orbit, is a spot of beauty filled with blue skies, mountain streams and parks and playgrounds.
 Visit LaGrange through the pages of this "brain boggling book."
 Enjoy the fantasy of Utopia. A copy of this paperback has been placed in the City-County Public Library with the compliments of the Sea Coast Echo.

Physical education ranks with academics in Naval Academy's three-phase curriculum (Editors note: This is the fourth of an Echo series on the United States Naval Academy in Annapolis, Md. We hope these articles will generate renewed interest in the Academy, especially in Mississippi which has only 20 midshipmen but should have at least 35).

Midshipmen at the Naval Academy face a three-part program of academics, professional training and physical development, and must maintain passing grades in all three.

In addition to participating in physical education, they must also join a team, making their choice from a field of 28 intercollegiate and 31 intramural sports.

Women midshipmen participate in all but the contact sports of football, lacrosse, rugby, boxing and wrestling. Through physical education courses, midshipmen must meet minimum requirements in various applied strength tests, including running, swimming and certain gymnastics.

Requirements for women midshipmen are slightly different, but equally difficult.

For example, while men must chin themselves on a horizontal bar, women must perform a flexed arm hang, holding their weight with head above the bar for a fixed period of time. Men must take wrestling and boxing, while women are trained in judo and hand-to-hand combat.

Intramural sports participation is in addition to the physical classes. Competition runs high and is measured from the company to battalion level, with brigade championships often drawing the enthusiasm reserved for intercollegiate matches in most schools.

The exploits of Navy varsity teams in competitive athletics are well-chronicled, in everything from football to fencing, sailing to squash, golf to gymnastics.

Their opponents include some of the best schools in the nation: Notre Dame in football, Pennsylvania and New York University in fencing; Lehigh in wrestling, Harvard and Penn in crew and Maryland in basketball and lacrosse, to name but a few.

Navy heavyweight crews captured the Olympic gold medal for eight-oared shells in Antwerp, Belgium, in 1920 and in Helsinki, Finland, in 1952.

In the mid-60s the Navy soccer team did not lose a regular season contest over a six-year, 48-game span. And from 1960-67, the Navy lacrosse team tallied eight consecutive national championships, a feat unparalleled in the history of the sport.

Navy's pistol team won four consecutive national titles from 1976 through 1979.

Football at the Naval Academy dates from 1879, just 10 years after Rutgers and Princeton introduced the game at New Brunswick.

The midshipmen have been to five bowl games. The most recent of these contests was in 1978 when they upset Brigham Young University in the inaugural Holiday Bowl.

Many Navy players have gained national recognition over the years including halfback Joe Bellino and quarterback Roger Staubach, each of whom won the Heisman Trophy, the college gridiron's most coveted individual prize, within a four-year period.

In 1975, roverback Chet Moeller was on everyone's All-America list. And in 1978, split-end Phil McConkey, defensive end Charlie Thornton and defensive back Greg Milo earned All-America honorable mentions.

The Naval Academy's sailing program is considered one of the finest in the world with its more than 100 craft, including a 99-foot schooner, five Class "A" ocean-racing vessels, twelve 44-foot Luder-designed fiberglass yawls and other sailboats of all classes.

Midshipmen compete in intercollegiate and other regattas and were national collegiate champions from 1977 through 1979.

They also race on the Chesapeake Bay and off-shore in the Atlantic during the summer.

Top flight physical facilities support the entire athletic program, and include the 28,000-seat Navy-Marine Corps Memorial Stadium in Annapolis, the huge Halsey Field House and more than 80 acres of lighted playing fields, a 5,000-seat baseball park, an 18-hole golf course, and an impressive array of tennis, squash, handball and badminton courts.

Soon to be constructed is a $14 million multi-purpose physical education center that will provide expanded facilities for swimming, diving, wrestling and track.

While the physical education courses are an integral part of the Naval Academy curriculum, the intercollegiate athletic program is administered by the Naval Academy Athletic Association, a non-profit organization headquartered in Annapolis.

LANDOWNERS

Do you need more income from your timberland? Hercules Incorporated has developed a process for converting the stump of a living pine tree into lightwood. With this new process, Hercules pays landowners for the right to treat the stumps of their pine timber while the trees are still growing and remove the stumps after the trees are harvested. With the stumps removed, the land is left in excellent condition for reforestation or conversion into other uses, such as pasture or row cropping.

To participate in the program, landowners need only to have merchantable pine timber which they plan to harvest within the next few years. To learn more about the program, call Mike Petter, 601-896-9472, Gulfport, Mississippi, or write or call Hercules Incorporated, Hattiesburg, Mississippi, 39401, phone number 601-545-3450.

College test

Students who have not yet taken a college entrance examination for the 1980-81 school year can still sign up for one of four national test dates, according to Dave Marcella, counselor at the Student Counseling Center at The University of Mississippi.

The national test dates for the American College Test (ACT) at Ole Miss are February 16, April 12 and June 14, while the Scholastic Aptitude Test (SAT) will be given May 3 at Ole Miss. Students who wish to take an entrance exam on one of the national test dates may contact their school counselors for registration materials, Marcella said. The ACT Residual, a version of the test that is designed primarily for high school graduates, is given at Ole Miss on the second Thursday of every month, Marcella said.

Students who have not yet completed high school may take the ACT Residual, but Ole Miss counselors recommend that students still in high school take the ACT on national test dates. "On the average, high school students who take the national ACT, always scheduled for Saturdays, score higher than those who take the residual, which is given on a weekday," Marcella said. The ACT Residual is given at 12:45 p.m. in Room 203 of the Lyceum at the University. Fee for the ACT Residual is $8 and test scores are sent free only to the school where the student takes the test, Marcella explained.

There is a $3 additional charge for each other school to which students want ACT Residual scores sent. National test fees are $7.50, and test scores are sent free to three universities of the student's choice. For more information about college entrance examinations, contact the Student Counseling Center at Ole Miss.

Fireworks sales trailers removed from US-90

By RICH ADAMS

A local fireworks vendor moved his trailer from its location on US-90 near Second Street Thursday afternoon in compliance with an order by the Bay St. Louis City Council, but not before a misunderstanding led him to believe he had an additional 30 days in which to move his temporary fireworks display.

Tony Vincent Jr. of Pass Christian said Thursday morning that Bay St. Louis Mayor Larry Bennett had granted him an extra 30 days in which to relocate, but Bennett said Thursday afternoon he had misunderstood the council's actions, adding Vincent was moving his structure from the lot that afternoon.

"I misunderstood the council's motion which was passed, but everything is squared away now," the mayor said Thursday.

"I have already talked to him (Vincent) this morning and the police chief is discussing the matter with him now. Hopefully he will be gone by this afternoon," Bennett added.

The issue of trailers being permanently parked on US-90 to be used periodically as fireworks stands was brought before the council last week, where it was decided that all trailers must be removed from their locations.

The council said the owner of the property on which the stand is located served eviction notices on Vincent as early as Oct. 15, and told him to vacate the lot immediately during the Tuesday meeting.

Other vendors in the city were given 30 days in which to move their temporary units.

Vincent claims the city never told him to move his trailer, stating that Robert Kane, manager of the realty company which owns the lot, reported council actions to him.

"I never was informed by the city," Robert Kane is not the city," Vincent said.

The council cited a city ordinance which allows trailers only to be located in designated trailer courts and on construction sites.

But Vincent said Thursday Bennett told him he could remain on the rented property for 30 days, despite the council's order to move the trailer immediately.

Vincent also claims that Bennett told him to take the wheels from his trailer to make it appear permanent, stating the mayor told him he could stay if the wheels were removed.

"I have been an established business here since before Hurricane Camille," Vincent said at the fireworks stand Thursday.

"I think this issue now is just being raised to make somebody look good," he added.

Mike Benvenuti of Bay St. Louis, stating he is a concerned citizen in the matter, was at the stand complaining the structure is an eyesore in the community, noting the stand is only open two months out of the year but remains at the site "365 days during the year."

Vincent and Benvenuti became engaged in a heated discussion in which Vincent pointed out that some city-owned property is more unsightly than his small trailer.

"Look at all the junk cars and bath tubs outside the police department. The Gulf station down the road here has tires piled up all outside in the lot," Vincent said.

"I have become a scapegoat. I have a federal and state license to sell fireworks, and I will take this to a federal judge if necessary," he continued.

"I rented this lot from John McDonald in 1966. There was no zoning then. When Camille came, I needed a space to store my goods because my other storage truck was blown away. I store my goods here," he added.

"If people cannot buy my fireworks here in Bay St. Louis, they will go to Slidell and get things which will blow their heads off. That is a felony to sell turned over to Eaton for balance payment on the engineering bill.

"If EPA only comes up with $20,000 we could only pay $10,000 on the balance for the preliminary plan," Longo said.

The board then authorized Eaton to complete preliminary plans for the design of the project for approval by EPA, EDA and the City of Waveland.

"We really need to move because these people north of US-90 really need sewerage," the mayor urged.

Eaton said he would discuss an approach for a water and drainage plan for the Waveland area north of US-90 with the proper authorities.

"We can use a Hardy-Cross water study, a computerized program, to get water over to the north side in an eight-inch line. This will show low pressure areas," Eaton said.

Longo reported there was some dissatisfaction over a recent seven and a half percent pay raise approved for city employees.

its agencies, departments, and institutions and at the same time leave a sufficient working balance in the state treasury.

"In order to insure and make provision for these admittedly recognized, legitimate needs, the commission has concluded that a recommendation should be made to the 1980 session of the legislature that a ceiling be placed at the maximum of $42 million on the proceeds resulting from the diversion of the sales tax on petroleum products to the Highway Department," the commission recommends.

"The commission concluded that this action would in no way take away from the Highway Department," the report notes.

TEACHER PAY

The commissioners told legislators that $42 million ceiling would generate approximately $36 million additional revenues to the state's general fund.

That $36 million will provide "...a seven percent salary increase for teachers under the Minimum Program, a seven percent salary increase for teachers in the Vocational Educational Division, fund the Medicare Commission in excess of their statutory limitation, and additional funding for the Building Commission for repairs and renovations."

"New or expanded programs were not recommended, and were left to the discretion of the legislature," the commissioners stated, adding, "Each budget was trimmed as closely as possible without impairing the rendition of programs to the public."

The commission issued the following recommendations concerning state employee salaries:

"1—No new positions were recommended (except those previously mandated by the legislature). To counter inflation, the commission established a seven percent maximum in the category of state employees salary increases. This did not apply to minimum wage employees.

"2—Recommended reduction of those positions that have been vacant for over 90 days by 90 percent overall along with the funds for those positions.

"3—Implemented calendar year 1981 minimum wage on Jan. 1, 1981.

"4—Recommended seven percent salary increase for minimum program teachers, all IHL and junior college employees and teachers in non-classified agencies.

"5—Effective Oct. 31, 1979 all positions established by any agency of state government will conform to the salary schedule as adopted in the compensation plan by the Mississippi Classification Commission, regardless of source of funds."

"In most budgets, all categories other than salaries were held to (or below) the 1980 funding level. The only exceptions were for rent expenses, utilities, fuel cost, food for persons, and medicine and drugs," the commissioners continued.

"Agency heads will be informed state agency budget categories were reduced according to guidelines in order to make funds available for salary increases for present personnel," they noted.

"Agency heads will be further advised of the extreme necessity of holding expenditures within maximum category amounts recommended for fiscal year 1981," according to the report signed by Francis Geoghegan, commission director.

The Budget and Accounting Commission is manned by the governor as ex-officio chairman, lieutenant governor, Senate president pro-tem, Senate Finance Committee chairman, Senate Appropriations Committee chairman, Speaker of the House, House Appropriations Committee chairman, House Ways and Means Committee chairman, and other senators and representatives.

Smith said he has requested reassignment to his post on the Senate Finance Committee which deals with tax bills. Senate committee assignments will be made by Lieutenant Governor-elect Brad Dye.

Compretta said he is unaware as yet what committee assignments he will be given by the House Speaker.

Smith noted the forthcoming four-month legislative session will open Tuesday, Jan. 8.

The senator said he feels the number one priority for the session will be maintenance of a balanced budget while "spreading the dollars around to meet the needs."

"We will be dealing with a new governor and lieutenant governor with only 27 senators returning from last year's body," Smith noted.

He said the new governor and lieutenant governor and the incumbent speaker of the house have already met and are in apparent accord on most major issues. "I'm looking forward to an excellent administration."

Smith told the chamber he expects a first item of business will be adjustment of the state's usury laws which currently limit interest rates to 10 percent.

He also noted Gov.-elect William Winter in his campaign advocated establishment of state bonds to support home mortgages.

"We will also give priority consideration to keeping our financial climate friendly to potential new industry in the state," Smith said.

He said the Senate may consider a proposal to construct shell buildings in industrial parks for use by incoming industries.

Compretta said he expects some 3,000 bills to be introduced during the session.

He noted the House will be composed of 45 percent new members; 15 black representatives who gained seats following last year's successful reapportionment suit; and one returning female member.

Smith said the Senate will include two blacks and no women in the 1980 session.

Compretta said the House's number one consideration will be "money and the recommendations which come from the Budget and Accounting Commission and our own Appropriations Committee."

"There will surely be a two-term governor's succession bill introduced, but it will never get out of the House committee," Compretta predicted.

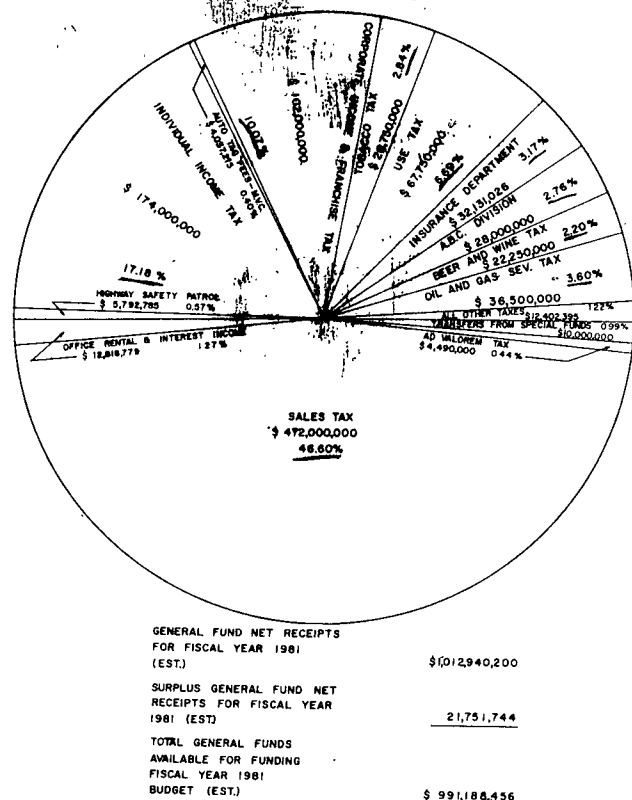

The speaker of the house is a staunch opponent of gubernatorial succession and screens out succession advocates when making appointments to the appropriate committee, Compretta explained.

Chamber member Warren Carver, former Bay St. Louis mayor, urged Smith to push for legislation providing a unified system of tax collection to replace a current system which requires ad valorem taxpayers, in some cases, to make payments in three different places in Hancock County.

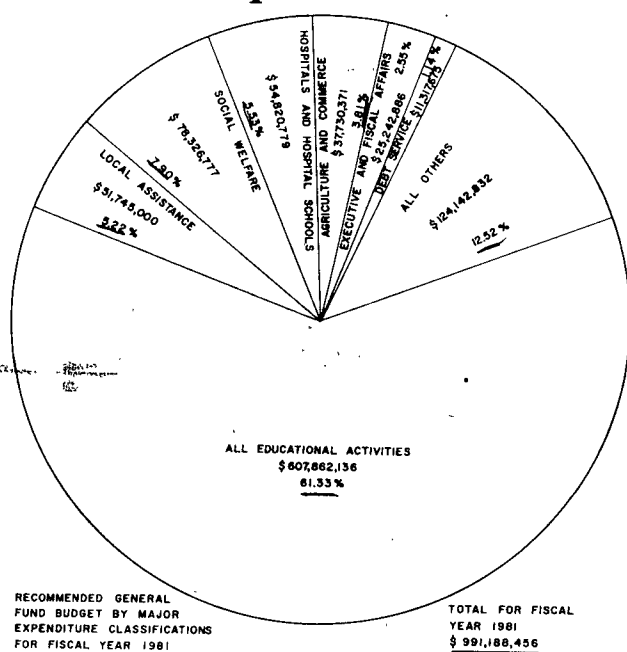

"There have been property owners who find their land and house up for tax sale because they were unaware of the complicated method of paying," Carver noted.

Smith said he expects the Senate also to consider legislation unifying the state's school districting laws, "...a bill which will provide that each school district in the state is providing the same level of services to our children."

In other business at the meeting called earlier in the month than usual because of Christmas holidays, the Chamber Board voted to fund re-wiring of the community Christmas tree on US-90 between North Beach Boulevard and North Second Street.

The tree was damaged by thieves who took wiring and most lights shortly after the tree was lighted in special ceremonies Sunday, Dec. 9.

"It's a shame, when we have a community project like this tree of which we are all so proud, to have some bum come in and tear it down," stated board member Sonny Bailey, an electrical contractor who donated labor and materials to wire the tree.

Bailey said he lost some $75 in wiring materials to the thieves, while the chamber lost some $50 worth of lights.

Bailey said he will replace the wiring with less expensive materials less likely to be attractive to thieves.

The chamber will replace the missing lights.

Chamber President Wayne Ducomb appointed four new members to the board of directors. They are: Billy Sills of Kiln, superintendent-elect of the Hancock County School District; Bob Johnson of Holly Bluff, Chink and Bambari Corp.; John Scalfidi, Bay St. Louis attorney; and Alan McCaslin of Alcan Cable Division.

"With the cooperation of Rev. Clark, pastor of First Assembly of God Church, we obtained the names of 10 children to receive our special Christmas Gifts," said Ms. Bourgeois.

In 1974 Sirloin Stockade employees voted to donate their $5 Christmas gifts to children in their community, according to Chick.

Every child received $10 and was treated to a Christmas dinner party at the Waveland Restaurant.

They were then taken on a short shopping tour at a local department store to spend their Christmas money.

T.G. & Y. of Waveland participated with Sirloin Stockade by offering the children 10 percent off on merchandise.

"We at Sirloin Stockade are very much a part of Waveland, and in a sense, this is one way we can say thank you for the support Waveland has given us. We do a large family business and we were delighted at this opportunity to help deserving youngsters to have a Merry Christmas," Ms. Bourgeois said. Sirloin Stockade is an Oklahoma City-based chain of some 200 steakhouses in 24 states.

NSTL concludes UW drive

In a ceremony marking the conclusion of the 1980 Combined Agencies Campaign (CAC), Jerry Hlass, manager of the National Space Technology Laboratories (NSTL), presented checks to United Way representatives from the surrounding areas.

Hlass reported that NSTL employees pledged $90,095, exceeding the 1980 goal of $85,000. He also noted that the amount pledged was second only to the pledges of the 1970 campaign following Hurricane Camille.

United Way representatives accepting checks for their agencies were Theodore Robinson, Harrison County; Conrad Mauffray, Hancock County; R.L. Nolton, Pearl River County; and William Spencer, Greater New Orleans Area.

Spencer commented: "What you're doing here is very important, not only in terms of the dollars you raise, but more importantly by the leadership I think you're giving the whole Gulf Coast. It's terrific to see the kind of support that comes out of this operation with as many different agencies and companies that are located here—to see them come together in a combined fashion to do something so well. I think you stand as an example for the whole area."

Other designated agencies which will receive funds from NSTL's CAC are the United Way of Jackson, Stone, Lamar and Forrest counties, and Mobile, Ala.; the National Health Agencies; and the International Service Agencies.

Hlass thanked the members of this year's campaign and June Calkins, NSTL Torch Bearer, for their efforts. Committee members are Mark Payne, Dewey Little, W.S. Fuller, John Seley and Mack Herring.

"The CAC is something we enjoy doing but it takes a lot of hard work. We owe these individuals a word of thanks," Hlass concluded. "Again, we are pleased that we have exceeded our goal and we intend to do that in the future."

UNITED WAY—Jerry Hlass, right, manager of the National Space Technology Laboratories, presents a Combined Agencies Campaign check to Conrad Mauffray, center, of the Hancock County United Way. At left is June Calkins, NSTL Torch Bearer, who assisted with the campaign. NSTL employees pledged $90,095, exceeding the Installation's goal of $85,000. USM receives grant to study jails

Only two other states, besides Mississippi, don't have some type of standards for jails. The State Corrections Board recently awarded the University of Southern Mississippi Criminal Justice Department a $50,000 grant to study and recommend proposed standards for county jails in the state.

USM's CJ Department has already amassed background information from a two-year comprehensive study of county jails, and is currently studying the Jones County Jail. "Because we have researched the jails in the past we will not be going to every jail in the state," said Prof. Tyler Fletcher, CJ chairman.

A dozen or so jails in various sections of the state will be visited.

Fletcher is currently putting together a committee of sheriffs, doctors, professors, lawyers and lay people to visit jails and study the standards of other states. "We will also ask the advice of some ex-offenders, too," he said.

As well as the standards of other states, the committee will look at standards of federal agencies, the American Bar Association and the American Correctional Association to help in formulating Mississippi's standards.

The standards will satisfy constitutional requirements, reduce the number of lawsuits targeted on jail conditions and result in cheaper processing of prisoners, according to Fletcher.

One of the most evident solutions is to put fewer people in jail. "Most of the people there are drunks, who may only be dangerous in an automobile. It makes little sense to spend a lot of money to incarcerate them in traditional jails," he said.

As important as the facilities, are the people who run them. "A person trained as a policeman may not necessarily be a good jailer. Incarcerating the offender involves more than enforcing the law and turning the key, being a jailer involves specialized training."

Periodic inspections and training programs for jail administrators and personnel will be among the important components of the standards.

"This research may be one of the most significant services USM has ever rendered communities," Fletcher said, adding that once the standards are submitted to the legislature and if they become law, they would be implemented by the counties over a span of several years.

NSTL employees receive awards

Two NASA employees at the National Space Technology Laboratories (NSTL) recently received major agency awards for their exceptional career contributions. Sid Whitley and Dr. B.C. Wolverton were presented their awards by Jerry Hlass, NSTL manager, in a ceremony attended by NASA employees at the Installation.

Whitley, chief of the NSTL Earth Resources Laboratory's data management group, received NASA's Exceptional Service Medal "in recognition of his outstanding achievements in data management and data system development for cost effective application or remote sensing technology."

The certificate, signed by Dr. Robert Frosch, NASA administrator, further stated, "His management and leadership in system development at NSTL have been effective in demonstrating and transferring space technologies to meet the increasing needs of natural resource managers in the user community."

A Picayune resident, Whitley, has been employed by NASA since 1963. As chief of the data management group, he is responsible for overall data management support of the Earth Resources Laboratory including assistance in the transfer of NASA developed technology through the laboratory's Regional Applicants Program.

Wolverton, an environmental scientist, received a large cash award in recognition of his scientific and technical contribution in developing the vascular aquatic plant waste treatment system.

Wolverton's research with water hyacinths has gained worldwide recognition and the technology developed from that research is being used at Walt Disney World in Florida and by the states of California and Texas.

Wolverton, a Picayune resident, has been employed by NASA at NSTL for eight years. He was previously awarded the NASA Exceptional Scientific Service Medal and is the recipient of scientific awards from the Navy, Air Force and the American Institute of Aeronautics and Astronautics.

MEC calls for revamp of lower court system

Mississippi's Justice Court System, as it exists today is outdated and badly in need of general improvement according to the Mississippi Economic Council.

MEC President Benton Cain of Jackson said that the justice court system as constituted had its justification in earlier days when Mississippi was a rural state with a small, widely scattered population. "At the time of the 1890 Constitution, it was important that there was some sort of court system which would decide disputes—without delay and inconvenience—between neighbors involving small matters of property or minor crimes," he said.

Cain feels these advantages have vanished and that there is widespread dissatisfaction with the deficiencies of the system.

"The system is marked by an absence of legal training and experience by most of the judges," said Cain.

"The jurisdiction of the justice court requires that a judge have ability to decide whether evidence is admissible, to instruct juries, and to interpret the statutes. Litigants frequently are unwilling to let the ultimate decision rest with a judge in whose legal ability they have little confidence," he continued.

The results of a comprehensive court finance study conducted by the Mississippi Judicial Council over the past year recommends abolishment of the justice court system and creation of a Magistrate Division of the Circuit Court with enactment of minimum qualifications.

The study found there is a definite need to upgrade the state's lower court system and make it more efficient and responsive to the public.

The Mississippi Judicial Council is a 16-member agency created by the Legislature in 1977 to conduct a continuing study of the administration of justice in Mississippi and to make recommendations.

"MEC supports upgrading of the legal form and procedures in the state's lower court system," said Cain.

"MEC recommends amending the state constitution to permit the Legislature to either continue to prescribe additional qualifications for the office of justice court judge or replace the justice court system with another system of lower courts."

There's an Answer!

Deserves to be happy

Q. My husband and I are not happy with our marriage. A civilized discussion generally results in an uncivilized argument. The only good thing that has come out of these 10 years is the children. My present attitude is that I am "buying time" until the children are teenagers and I can get on with my life. I am holding down a full-time job, managing the house, the children and the budget. I seldom do anything for me. This causes resentment toward my husband to build up. I feel I deserve some happiness the same as other people. Is there any help?

A. It would be interesting to have your husband's opinion. Seems as though the chief issue is what you are not getting. Wonder if your husband also says, "I seldom do anything for me." It sounds like a "me" marriage with little emphasis on the "you" or "us." Perhaps if each of you played down the "me" angle and emphasized the something for the other attitude, the marriage would be on a firmer basis.

Stunned by the answer
Q. I saw your reply to a troubled wife whose 50-year-old husband had become enamored with a 17-year-old girl. She was told to let the girl take this man to one of her teen parties where no other adults were. You were confident that this would change the man's mind. Are you aware of what is going on these days? That solution would surely turn the man's ego motor on "high" and lessen any restraints he may have had. Fathers over 40 years of age feel the sexual revolution has passed them by and are leaving their wives and families to find 17-year-olds. There are plenty around. Everything is very open. No one feels ashamed. These men are at the discos, the teen parties, the beach-wherever! I was really stunned by your answer which I felt was very shallow and flip.

by Norman Vincent Peale and Ruth Stafford Peale

A. We didn't mean it to be either "shallow" or "flip." We simply did the best we could with the question at the time. But if you are right, we are stunned!

Keep mouth shut?

Q - It is nothing for my husband to drink 18 to 24 beers a day. If I say anything to him he says I'm bitching and nagging. I'm really concerned about him. He never eats until I just make him. He says he knows he's going to Hell so why keep on trying? Should I keep my mouth shut and pray a little harder? It seems the harder I pray the more he drinks, so what can I do?

A - Nagging, so called, hardly ever achieves a creative purpose, usually stimulates resistance. But love quietly given is another thing. It may work slowly, but ultimately it gets its way. This

Busy Fingers swap presents

Busy Fingers Extension Homemakers Club held its annual luncheon and Christmas party December 11 in extension auditorium where gifts were exchanged by members.

The next regular meeting will be at 9:45 a.m. Tuesday, January 15, in extension auditorium.

PLAYING SANTA

Did you hear about the lady, rushed for time, who ran into the nearest stationary store, grabbed a box of greeting cards, hurriedly signed them, addressed 49 cards, and put them in the mail addressed to friends within she wished to remember at Christmas.

After the rush was over, she took time to read the verse on the one remaining card. It said:

"This little card has come to say, Your Christmas gift is on the way."

Best Wishes

Thanks for your gifts of loyalty and patronage throughout the year.
